COURSE STRUCTURE

It is important that you please carefully review each portion of the modules, as there are a variety of assignments, testing, and resources and other information provided within each module. Please know that you are responsible for all material covered in the course, including, but not limited to, the readings, videos, discussions, assignments, and testing. In other words, please don't just focus on the chapter questions, while ignoring the remainder of the chapters. Moreover, though the video lectures tend to serve as a form of review of some of the key points from the text, they also emphasize important points and add additional information, which may not be covered in the textbook.

- Every week of the term has a Module. In each module you will find links to all the materials relevant.
- Read the syllabus carefully. It has all the information that you need. You can save yourself and your instructor a lot of time if you study the syllabus, make notes of important dates in your personal calendar and follow along with the course.
- Important: Please note that some assignments which are due throughout the term, require prior or ongoing work. Consequently, please do not merely look at due dates and think that you should complete an assignment that week. Some of the main assignments (such as the Interview a Manager and the Team Project) should be worked on much earlier than their due dates.

How this Course Works

It is integral that you follow the modules, as they lay out the course assignments and materials in an organized fashion. It will be necessary to purchase a legitimate copy of the textbook, as the chapter questions are tied into the Flatworld system. The Midterm and Final Exams are cumulative, as material builds throughout the term.

If you haven't already done so, please review the actual downloadable syllabus.

- The course will mostly be graded on correct responses to questions, depth and quality, clarity, and significance of postings and submissions, while depicting preparedness. It's important to leave no doubt that you understand and can apply the material. Please uphold the requirement of quality and expectation of active participation, while sharing your own views, experience, and when appropriate, additional sourcing.
- Generally speaking, the course flows in the order of the modules as depicted on Canvas. Typically, modules have a "where to next" type of directive page which you are asked to please review prior to moving forward, as these pages help lay out what is intended next on the agenda. Please note, some of the "where to next" styled pages, may have some funny names. I do this in an effort to keep things a bit on the lighter side for my students from time to time. So, I thank you for going with the flow.
- This 8-week course will be organized into weekly segments. Though the course will not require meeting in person, nor will it demand synchronous interaction as a group, each week, you will be expected to be actively involved in the assignments as part of fulfillment of the learning objectives for the course, while demonstrating your mastery of the student outcomes. Additionally, there is a team project which will require coordination and interaction with classmates.

In order to demonstrate such proficiency, you will:

- Follow the Community Ground Rules at all times.
- All assignments shall exhibit high, professional quality work, depth, creativity, appropriate citations, and clear connection with our coursework.
- Complete the reading for each section of the book, as well as conduct independent research on topics, technologies or businesses related to the reading and discussion concepts.
- Participate in the online discussion board(s) with insightful, original, and well-constructed thoughts which relate to your own research, experience, and the topics presented by others.
- When posting (whether initial postings or response postings) on our discussion board(s), instead of being completely general, all students should please try to tie in some of the principles/terms from our course if possible. Again, please include appropriate outside sources (citing properly). As for the length of the initial posting and response postings, that really is open to how creative, appropriate, and thorough you are in your responses. If I believe your submission style needs to be adjusted, I will advise you accordingly. Do you think I would consider what you have submitted to be "Excellent?" or "Good" or " Merely Acceptable" or "Lacking" or "Insufficient?" Do your postings follow directions and inputs? Are they quality postings which reflect deep, critical thought and creativity to add to the value of the discussion while following all our community ground rules? At this level of education, I am confident you are able to recognize if you are submitting quality points, without going too overboard with minor details or fluff styled added content.
- Students respect the views and opinions of their peers, guests and the professor. Discussion is encouraged and an integral portion of this class. It's anticipated that in a variety of instances, there be differing ideas and opinions. Intolerance for the views of others is unacceptable.
- Late Policy. As depicted below, unless otherwise approved by the professor, all assignments are expected when requested. Late assignments are generally NOT accepted and will result in ZERO points or if accepted, will be subject to a (substantial) reduction in points. Contact the instructor as soon as possible if you are unable to complete an assignment on time due to an emergency situation or extraordinary circumstances.

COMMUNICATION

The best ways to get in touch with Professor Roos:

Email: Christopher.roos@csuci.edu

Call or Text: (818)519-0106 - If sending a text, please be sure to state who you are, since many times only a phone number will appear, but not a name. Thank you.

If you send an email, text, or leave a voice message, please leave detailed information including level of urgency. Please advise if there is a certain manner you prefer to be contacted by and also if there's any time you should not be contacted back. At times I will respond to emails and texts during late night or early morning hours. Should you be in a situation where your receipt of same will serve as a disturbance to you or others and you prefer that I not send such communications during those times, please be sure to let me know so I can do my best to not disturb you.

Generally speaking, my goal is to respond to student inquiries within 24 hours. However, in many instances I respond much more rapidly. If you have reached out to me via one of the above methods and you have not heard back from me within 24 hours, please again reach out to me using another medium from the one you previously tried. Thank you. Please be cognizant of your form of delivery and intended degree of privacy when communicating. For instance, when responding to an announcement made via Canvas, your response may be viewable by the entire class. Similarly, take notice if replying to "all" as compared to one person in email communications.

EXPECTATIONS

This course is offered in an online format. Course information and content is housed in the CSUCI Canvas Success in college requires preparation. The information below is provided to help set clear and realistic expectations about college level work, as well as resources to help students succeed.

- Plan to spend 8 12 hours weekly on course readings, resources, interactions, and assignments.
- Plan to have consistent and reliable access to the internet.
- Note all the course graded assignments and exams on your personal calendar.
- Read the textbook and other assigned reading material as scheduled in the modules.
- View each of the videos/lectures assigned in the modules and complete all assignments/quizzes and exams.
- Check your email and Canvas site every day.
- Important: Please note that some assignments which are due throughout the term, require prior or ongoing work. Consequently, please do not merely look at due dates and think that you should complete an assignment that week. Some of the main assignments (such as the Interview a Manager and the Team Project) should be worked on much earlier than their due dates.
- As you move through the topics in each module, rather than simply viewing lecture content, you may be asked to read, listen to, and watch a variety of media. You'll also be regularly prompted to actively evaluate your knowledge as you're building it. The components in each module are designed to be generally completed in order, though again, please know that some assignments depicted in latter modules require work prior to the respective week/module. It is important that you please carefully review each portion of the modules, as there are a variety of assignments, testing, and resources and other information provided within each module. Please know that you are responsible for all material covered in the course, including, but not limited to, the readings, videos, discussions, assignments, and testing. In other words, please don't just focus on the chapter questions, while ignoring the remainder of the chapters. Moreover, though the video lectures tend to serve as a form of review of some of the key points from the text, they also emphasize important points and add additional information, which may not be covered in the textbook. In addition to videos, readings, assignments and interactives, here are a few types of activities you'll encounter.

- Chapter Homework Questions: At the conclusion of chapters, you will complete a graded retention quiz covering concepts introduced in the chapter. These questions are designed to assess your learning at regular intervals, identify gaps in knowledge, and help you prepare for the course exams.
  However, please remember that you are responsible for all material covered in the chapters (not just the material related to the questions posed), as well as all material covered in discussions, presentations/lectures/videos, assignments and overall material in the course.
- Discussion Board: In certain modules, you'll find detailed discussion board prompts where you are expected to post a video and/or written response, as well as comment on your classmates' posts. These discussion boards are graded by your instructor according to the directions provided.
- Office Hours: Use this time to ask your instructor about any concepts you are struggling with, difficulties with assignments, or to simply share something relevant to the class.
- If you find that you are having difficulties with the content of this course, you are highly encouraged to contact Professor Roos to inquire about learning strategies that may lead to success in this course.

ASSIGNMENT DETAILS

MBF Termination Assignment

Please refer to the assignment instructions on Canvas. This interactive assignment asks you to put yourself in the position of manager/operator of a firm who needs to determine the order in which you'd terminate employees. The assignment serves as a good opportunity to elicit critical thinking as might be necessitated in the role of manager.

Chapter Discussion Questions

Please refer to the assignment instructions on Canvas. Different than the objective chapter questions, the chapter discussion questions allow students to impart their own subjective knowledge into material from the respective chapter(s).

Chapter Questions (AKA Quizzes)

Please refer to the assignment instructions on Canvas. For each of the chapters of the text, there are objective questions in which to respond to.

Current Event

Please refer to the assignment instructions on Canvas. Management of organizations can be found in a multitude of arenas, for instance, within sports, education, corporations, and neighborhood stores. This assignment allows students to tie in and analyze some of the course's management material to actual events.

Interview a Manager

Please refer to the assignment instructions on Canvas. One of the staple assignments of this course, this assignment calls for students to interview a manager/supervisor based off of some specific questions, while being encouraged to include additional questions of their own. The interview is then examined and written about, tying in our course material.

Peter Drucker Paper

Please refer to the assignment instructions on Canvas. This assignment asks students to explore one of management's foremost authors/theorists, while assessing areas of success/failure and concepts in which the respective student agrees or disagrees with.

Sydney Brian Peters Case Study

Please refer to the assignment instructions on Canvas. This multifaceted case includes issues such as covering, the concept of staying put, ethics, and the economics of one's name to name a few. On the surface it may seem pretty clear cut, but as students delve deeper into the considerations, they may find they are torn as to how they'd address some of the dilemmas at play.

Team Project

Please refer to the assignment instructions on Canvas. This multi-part assignment calls for students to work with fellow students to develop a new organization, tying in a substantial amount of the concepts covered in the course, and to then formulate a pitch to possible investors about said organization.

Exams

Please refer to the exam instructions on Canvas. Both the midterm and final exam will be cumulative to include material covered throughout all aspects of the course up until the respective point of the exam.

LATE ASSIGNMENT POLICY

Unless otherwise approved by the professor, all assignments are expected when requested. Late assignments are generally NOT accepted and will result in ZERO points or if accepted, will be subject to a (substantial) reduction in points. Contact the instructor as soon as possible if you are unable to complete an assignment on time due to an emergency situation or extraordinary circumstances.

EXAM AND QUIZ INSTRUCTIONS

Please refer to the information in Canvas for the appropriate instructions for each EXAM or QUIZ.

If I am 'out'

If I get ill, or need to care for a loved one, or some other unexpected interruption, I may not be able to be present or interactive in the course. If that were to happen (and let's hope it doesn't), you need to follow the Canvas instruction where I will place lectures, and PowerPoint slides, assignments, and exams.

If you are 'out'

If you are out for the same above reasons, you need to let me know and we can communicate via email. You will need to follow the Canvas instructions and modules for your assignments. Take a few hours or days.

SUCCESS IN AN ONLINE COURSE

To succeed in the online environment, students should have the following:

- A computer with a stable Internet connection.
- Basic computer skills email, Internet, and basic word processing.
- Microsoft Office 2010, or newer (must include Word) or equivalent.
- An email address that will not change from the beginning until the end of the term.

- Sufficient time online courses require as much time as face-to-face courses.
- Self-motivation, accountability, and good time management to work with minimal supervision.

Students are also required to:

- Make use of online course materials available via Canvas.
- Participate in asynchronous online discussions.
- Complete readings and assignments by the dates indicated on the schedule.

Please review the course schedule ahead of time and note submissions deadlines to better plan your individual work and teamwork. Students are encouraged and expected to collaborate, engage, and actively consult with their teammates when completing team projects. However, consulting with friends and doing online searches while completing quizzes and tests is considered cheating and may result in zero points on the assessment, expulsion from the course, and suspension from the program. Please reach out to the professor with any questions.

- Avoid slang, uncommon abbreviations, obscene or threatening language
